Class History

Dear Class of 1955,

Here we are seniors and ready to go each his own separate way. It hardly seems possible, does it, when we look back on the wonderful, memorable days that we have spent at Ellsworth together. Now we are leaving behind a chapter in our lives that never will be forgotten by any of us.

Do you remember the first day of school in our freshman year? It was all so very new and exciting! At first we were afraid of the seniors, but after we realized that they weren't going to eat us alive, we began to like our new school.

We were, naturally, underprivileged, ungainly, illiterate, little freshmen, but that didn't stop our class of livewires. No, sir, we had descended upon Ellsworth like an atom bomb. There were so many of us running loose that our advisers thought that they would never get us organized. Finally, after two or three years, we began to settle down.

Soon after school started, the senior class invited us to their Senior Get-Together. Most of our illustrious, noisy class honored them with their presence. As a result of this, to top off an action-packed evening, pert Carolyn LaPierre was crowned queen, which created a big sensation, because Carolyn was one of us — a freshman, I mean.

And so continued our first year until Christmas. In January we elected our class officers: John Malin, President; Dick Whitehouse, Vice President; Lucretia Graham, Secretary; and Betty Ann Ahern, Treasurer. They were our representatives in the Student Council.

During the spring of the year we gave our first party, the Freshman-Sophomore Party. We decided that a carnival with all its trimmings was a unique idea, even if it had been used several times before. Under the constant guidance and careful scrutiny of Mr. Olsen, we began to organize the wittiest party ever. We strung colored, blinking lights from basket to basket along our midway. One thing I'll never forget was the eager looks on the girls' faces when they eyed the boys, who, incidentally, tried to beat a hasty retreat from the dance floor on the other side of the gym. My how times have changed, but it was fun, wasn't it!

Do you remember the fire drill that turned out to be disastrous for several members of our class? Well — being underprivileged underclassmen, Judy Daly, Mary Barnes, and Theresa Fortier unwittingly marched down the front steps during the fire drill. Now that in itself was all right, but listen to this. They had the nerve to scamper playfully right back up them. The seniors turned crimson with revenge, and a trial, unbiased of course, was held. GUILTY was the verdict.

Two weeks later three chattering underclassmen could be seen, armed with tooth brushes and buckets of muddy water, scrubbing the sacred front steps under the critical eyes of the seniors. Oh, those sore knuckles!

This type of thing was always happening in our class. One member even went as far as to get her head caught in her locker — but we won't mention any names.

It was a successful year, and we looked forward to the summer as a rest — at least some of us did.

The long summer preceding our sophomore year came to a close, and we all filed enthusiastically to school — for the first three days that is — then back to the grind. We chose our class officers right away and sent them to the Student Council. They were: President, Dick Whitehouse; Vice President, John Malin; Secretary, Lucretia Graham; and Treasurer, Sue Ordway.

Time then flew by and before we knew it, our Sophomore-Freshman Party rolled around. We worked hard in preparation, as this was to be one of the highlights of the year. Yes, it was now our turn to welcome the new — pardon the expression — freshmen. It was a riot! Naturally, our decorations were the best! We chose "Hobo Camp" for the theme of the affair, which came in time for the Halloween Season.

We would never settle for anything but the best, so we decided that we would have some realistic surroundings for a change. Thus, sticky decorators dragged pine trees from near and far and planted them in every nook and cranny in the gym. Then colored leaves and branches from the trees surrounding the parking lot were collected. We turned the basketball hoops into bushes and even had a little pool with a stuffed fox drinking water from it. All this and a tent with grass from the Cemetery Association too!

In the midst of the rollicking party, one of the pine trees was shaken loose from its moorings and crashed to the floor. It didn't hit anyone — just scared them! It was soon raised again by our masculine members, and the party continued to become a smashing success.

Among our many activities and banquets, a memorable one was the Father-Son Banquet, sponsored by the Industrial Arts Department — naturally in co-operation with the cook. This contributed to the education of the parents as far as shop work goes.

At this time honors were beginning to be passed out. One of our versatile classmates, Betty Luchina, was selected to edit our South Winds for the following year. She did a wonderful job, too. If I remember correctly, we won a few national awards; a couple of first prizes, maybe?

Pep-packed Judy Daly was chosen a cheerleader. Everyone jumped for joy. So did Judy, but that isn't unusual, as Judy was always jumping about one thing or another. Betty Ann Ahern was picked at the same time, and the two girls at last breathed a sigh of relief — no more crawling up the stairs till next year.

Then came the year filled with activities. We were now squeezed into two homerooms and had a hard time breathing. The best part was the fact that we were now juniors. The first thing we did was to hold a class meeting and select our class officers: Miles Grant, President; Joe Krawski, Vice President; Secretary, Sally McQueeney; and Treasurer, Joanne Kenny.

One of the sensations of the year was that gorgeous, yellow Mercury convertible driven by Al Schaefer. Wow! You should have seen everyone's eyes open wide.

Naturally, being red-blooded Ellsworthians, we went all out for sports right from the start. Yes, sir, we had the smoothest girls' and boys' basketball teams ever — at least for a while anyway. I'll never forget those Friday nights during the winter when we all used to go to the games and cheer the team on to victory. We even cheered them into the tournament. I still can't figure out how we ever managed to utter even the meekest cheer, as the bleachers were so crammed. We wouldn't have missed it for the world, despite the comfort problems. Under the leadership of our bouncy cheerleaders, Captain Betty Ann Ahern, Judy Daly, Nancy Badstuber, and Lucretia Graham, we cheered ourselves hoarse!

After the games we'd all make a mad dash for the pizza place and try to get there before anyone else did. Those with cars usually ended up with eight in the back seat going home, but they didn't mind a bit.

Do you happen to remember the mysterious case of the missing Coach? Well, the half-time of one of the basketball games was over, and the boys were out on the floor ready to play, but something was missing — the coach. The whistle blew — no coach! Where was Coach? I'll tell you where he was. He was madly banging on the gym office door, where Ed Platt (Cyrus to all athletes) had locked him. Cyrus, after pondering the strange absence of the coach for several minutes, hurriedly unlocked the door to find the coach nervously pacing the floor with sore fists from brutally beating the door. I guess Cyrus has been more careful lately, but If Coach is ever missing again, you'll know where to look for him.

The girls' basketball team had some memorable and amusing experiences, too. One day, while on our way to Rockville to defend our undefeated record, a strange thing happened. We were happily singing and talking (if that's unusual) on the bus, when suddenly, it stopped! We smelled smoke! The bus was on fire! We all jumped out of it and ran up the road — in case of an explosion. There wasn't one, much to our disappointment. The fire was soon out, but the bus couldn't be moved, and we were late for the game. Soon a Connecticut Company bus came by and, seeing our predicament, stopped and took us to Rockville. Little did we know that our troubles weren't yet over. During the game "Slugger" Lucretia Graham slammed Jacquie Daly in the eye and sent her to the hospital for seven stitches. We train them rough here, but it pays, doesn't it? Just look at our record.

The following spring was jam-packed with varied activities. One of the first was the All-Ellsworth Night, which replaced the annual Sports Banquet. Outstanding juniors and seniors from all the different activities in the school were honored by a speaker who had an extremely good sense of humor. He probably was put into such a joking mood by that delicious roast beef supper. Mmmm!

About this time we started working on plans for the Junior Prom. After much discussion and debate we decided that our theme would be "My Blue Heaven." Then the committees went to work. The home of the decoration committee was in the attic. They worked like slaves, painting, stapling, cutting, and laughing. Remember how the attic looked before and after? What a mess! I thought we'd never get it cleaned up. There certainly were plenty of problems. The biggest one was the ceiling. Since we couldn't use any tentcloth to cover up the beams, we decided to try something new. We ordered blue and white crepe paper by the bushel and made certain that the wide rolls had silver stars on them, to give the impression of a star-lit night. This was a fine idea until we started stringing it up. What a job! The boys scrambled from one lofty beam to another, adjusting, pinning, and stringing for two whole days. Finally it was completed and we breathed a hearty sigh of relief. Not for long, however, because when we returned to school the next morning, we found that someone had turned on the blowers in the gym and had twisted our beautiful ceiling into a messy mass of nothing. Broken-hearted, we reported our find to Mr. Ordway, who was as disappointed as we were. We straightened it again, deciding that this wasn't going to happen again. We fixed them! A brave boy climbed to perilous heights and took the fuses out of the fans. They were kept out of sight until after the prom.

The big night finally came. Many excited, radiant faces could be seen as the girls, all dressed in new gowns, and the boys, decked out in dinner jackets, walked through the reception line. Nervous? Yes, but happy.

The gym was a beautiful sight to behold. Heaven couldn't have been any prettier. There were spun glass clouds of fluffy blue and white, a castle in the horizon, and a blue star-studded sky above. Soft blue lights cast a romantic haze on the dance floor as the strains of Earl Mitchell's orchestra provided a dreamy background of heavenly music. Highlighting the prom was the crowning of Caroline Bancroft as queen, with a crown of rhinestones and pearls. Her glowing attendants were Betty Ann Ahern and Sue Ordway. All were presented with a bouquet of mixed flowers. Yes, that certainly was a night of nights and will never be forgotten.

Then came our fashion show with costumes fit for a queen, presented by the members of the S. C. H. E. Our models were our own girls, displaying the crafts that they had made themselves in their various classes of home economics. They were really beautiful clothes, too. Lord and Taylor doesn't carry any more stylish. Marie Gilbert was the narrator and did an expert job. The show took place in a "Garden of Fashion", which was decorated with real lilacs set among picturesque arches.

As the end of the junior year was drawing to a close, Betty Ann Ahern and Marlene Stanat were chosen as Class Marshals. Soon after, the ushers for Class Night and Graduation were announced. Our Yearbook Staff for the following year was chosen: Betty Luchina, Editor, John Malin, Kay Karlsen, Shirley Hall, Joanne Kenny, Joe Krawski, Richard Whitehouse, Joan Demikat, Robert Spielman, Nancy Badstubner, and Bill Gregonis. We elected Sally McQueeney, Carol Wheeler, and John Malin to represent us at Laurel and Nutmeg States during the following summer. Incidentally, they all had a wonderful time.

Our senior year at last arrived with the coming of autumn. We were now all in the cafeteria — all eighty-two of us! We had a lot to do and to start off on the right foot we elected our class officers at once. They were Miles Grant, President; John Malin, Vice President; Joanne Kenny, Secretary; and Carol Wheeler, Treasurer.

All of the activities around Ellsworth started like clock-work. In the S. C. H. E. Marie Gilbert took over as president and Jeannette Cote and Jeanne Harrison were elected to the positions of treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Several members of our class were on the editorial board of the South Winds. They were Irene Stozus, Nancy Badstubner, Sue Ordway, Betty Luchina, and John Malin. This was still a top-ranking paper. John Malin was a very important and indispensable person on the paper, too. He was our A-number-one sportswriter.

Our Senior Get-Together was the best and biggest party since — well — the prom. Our theme was Sports, and in keeping with the theme, we played a game that a few of the seniors will never forget, I am sure. It had to do with running around a bat. Remember? I never saw so many dizzy senior boys in my life.

The entertainment was the most! Our beauty queens for the fashion parade were supported by slinky dresses and balloons. Are these the men of tomorrow? One never knows!

The officers selected a freshman sports queen, Sandra Simmons, who reigned for the rest of the evening. We even spent some money out of our sacred treasury to buy a box of candy for the queen. We had stooped to pinching pennies for our Washington trip.

The class as a whole was doing all right scholastically. Our class brains were announced. The top ten were as follows: Joseph Krawski, Joanne Kenny, Elizabeth Ahern, Carol Wheeler, William Katkaveck, John Malin, Sally McQueeney, Marlene Stanat, Jeanne Harrison, and Robert Spielman.

Sports were again coming into the picture with the opening of the soccer season. The team had a good record and almost got into the tournament, but we were the fifth team and couldn't be squeezed in. That was too bad, but just wait till next year!

On November tenth the Magazine Party was given for Bob Spielman's Blue Team by the members of John Malin's Orange Team. Did we have fun! Mr. Kibbe's rendition of The Thing was enough to send us girls out of this world — (Sigh). We saw several movies, which included a sneak preview of the Ellsworth Story.

Prizes were awarded to the four top salesmen: John Malin, Betty Ann Ahern, Nancy Badstubner, and William Gregonis. There were gorgeous prizes! They deserved them, too! This climaxed our magazine campaign. It was a long, hard pull, and although we didn't quite reach last year's quota, it was a mighty close call. We sold $5,081.80 worth and made a profit of $1421. We'll all be reading magazines for the rest of our lives.

A change was then brought about at Ellsworth. The boys' new basketball uniforms had been changed to a new color — white with maroon and gold trim. The cheerleaders, not to be outdone, decided that their colors should be changed in order to match the teams'.

If we ever forget our wonderful musical organizations, there's one person we'll never forget. That's Miss Dziob! Because of her never-ending patience and our being musically inclined, within a few short weeks we were able to squeeze out some sounds on our variety of instruments. In the meantime, we learned to read music — at least most of the time.

In Orchestra there was never a dull moment. One day while we were trying to play the Muskrat Ramble, Miss Dziob was going through her usual acrobatic routine of counting out everyone's beats at the same time. Her arms were wildly flying and the baton, which for once was in one piece, was lying forgotten on the desk. After several tortured moments and hysterical screams of "one and 2 and, 1 and 2 and" — there was complete silence. One by one the instruments died down and stopped. We all stared wide-eyed at Miss Dziob. It was the first time that she couldn't utter a sound. Her jaw had locked in an open position, and she could neither talk nor close her mouth.

Soon the word was passed around the school about the catastrophe, and Mr. Adams and Dr. Williams, who happened to be in the building, filed grimly onto the stage, armed with towels and a little hammer. Finally after a break of about two months, Miss Dziob mustered up the courage to work again on the Muskrat Ramble. No more locked jaws!

The Chorus had its share of fun too, but most of the seniors had to be content with joining the advanced chorus, which met only once a week. From this group several members attended the All-State Music Festival. They were Carolyn LaPierre, Sue Ordway, and Cornelius Dollak.

In the meantime we voted upon our choice for the D. A. R. award. We all waited anxiously for the outcome in the South Winds. Finally it came and we were all pleased to find that the winner was Betty Luchina, one of our hard working editors.

It is through the efforts and hard work of our class advisors and the Ellsworthian staff that this yearbook has been made possible. We want to thank you all for your time and help.

As the years pass, there will be many, many memories that we will cherish in our hearts. A large part of these will be of Ellsworth and the fond friends that we have acquired here. We may never see some of these people again, but the thought of them will flash through our minds every once in a while.

In a way it is sad to part, but in parting we strike out on the path into the future, a path with many branches that will lead us to happiness, hardship, contentment, and success. Thus, as we draw near the forks in the path, we wave a fond farewell to our past and extend our arms in search of our individual goals, hoping that one day we may meet again, and knowing that we have completed "One Step In Life's Destiny."

Sincerely yours,
Suzanne Ordway

Class Will

We, the exalted Senior Class of Ellsworth Memorial High School, being of surprisingly sound mind and body after the past four harrowing years, do think it fitting and proper that we should at this time bequeath our most valuable traits to the untalented underclassmen.

To the Junior Class, we joyfully leave the cheerful thought of becoming round-shouldered from carrying their English IV books.

To the Sophomore Class, we leave a book of dancing instructions so that they will be able to dance at their own prom next year.

To the poor, under-privileged Freshmen, we leave the honor of changing their title to lowly Sophomores.

To the halls of E. M. H. S., we once again leave the quietness and tranquility which it has not known for four years.

To anyone who excels in both athletics and leadership, Miles Grant leaves his versatility.

Connie Jansky leaves her ever-ready smile to Beverly Byrnes. Don't forget, Bev, a smile a day will chase the blues away.

Bertha Winn relinquishes her variety of earrings to Dooreen Dixon. Do you have a different pair for every day, Dooreen? Bertha did.

William Gregonis bestows upon Bob Kilpatrick his title of best cook. Do you think a Fanny Farmer Cook Book will help, Bob?

Nancy Clark and Jonathan Hoskins regrettably give up the seat on the bleachers to Marjorie Higgins and Bobby Milkie. Please, don't carve too many hearts on the seats.

Frances Setsky leaves her neat appearance at basketball practice to Dotty Lou Morris. Press your shorts after each practice, Dotty Lou.

Rose Picolla and Carol Wheeler leave their everlasting friendship to Ruth Hallowell and Cecilia Balf. Don't forget, girls, no arguing.

Tommy Butler happily leaves his frequent visits to the office to Robert Hudson. Would you like a reserved seat, Butch?

Betsy Bond is to be the recipient of Marie Gilbert's title of best dressed.

Judy Daly and Pete Harrison regrettably leave their ability to talk their way out of embarrassing situations to Billy Krawski. Don't forget the old saying, Bill, "Practice makes perfect."

Sue Ordway surrenders her love of singing to Joan Meyers. Promise you will sing at all the school parties, Joan.

To any struggling Typing I student who is desperately striving to get the required 30 words a minute, Pat Palozie leaves her typing ability.

Lucretia Graham and Bob Raulukaitis relinquish their title of most athletic to Ruth Jurgelas and Lenny Anderson.

Betty Luchina leaves her position as yearbook editor to anyone with patience and no fear of deadlines.

Caroline Bancroft wills to Larry Morse her long walks to school. Why don't you call a cab, Larry?

Jack Desrocher and Norman Cotton leave their record for being late to class to Joe Burns and Peter Enes.

To any underclassman who is planning to take physics, Ed Sharp leaves his mechanical mind.

William Schortman entrusts the care of his beloved Broad Brook to Ellen Smith. Do as good a job as Bill did, Ellen.

Joanne Kenny and Donald Rice leave their many freckles to Bernard Krawski. The Senior Class always was very generous, Bernie.

Ray Maher leaves his lead foot to Francis Chester. Try to keep it under 90 miles per hour, Francis.

Carolyn La Pierre and Cornelius Dollack leave their title of best dancers to Carol Kerkins and Richard Burnham.

Sandra Simmons is the recipient of Kay Karlsen's dreamy eyes. Don't break too many hearts with them, Sandra.

Tina Florida and Theresa Fortier leave their positions as Mrs. Reed's assistants to any girl who has study L period.

Norman Anderson leaves his build to Lyman White. Do you think the Charles Atlas plan will help?

William Dezso is to be the recipient of Chester Dran-genis's yearly seat in Mr. Olsen's history class. Better pay attention, Bill, or you might be there for too many years.

Raymond Zagorski sadly bestows upon Albert Prankus his collection of girls. Don't you think one at a time is enough, Albie?

Walter Russak leaves his beloved flock of ducks to Howard Jorgenson. Better watch them carefully during duck season, Howard.

Janet Boynton and Shirley Barbrick leave their height to be distributed between Jackie and Pat Weldon. Think it will help any, girls?

Jeanne Harrison leaves her title of most dignified to Ardelle Smith. From now on, Ardelle, you should say, "How now, brown cow."

Gail Agnoli wills her beautiful long hair to Marcia Adams. Promise not to get an Italian cut, Marcia.

A little of Jeanette Saczawa's and James Brown's quietness is to be left to Peter Files.

Jean Vermette is the recipient of Gail Mather's notes written during class. Well, Jean, do you think you have enough to publish a book?

Shirley Ellis and Marie LaFountain leave their love of girls' basketball to Sandra Jaworski. Don't forget, Sandra, only four fouls allowed in one game.

Mary Barnes's good natured disposition is to be bestowed upon Judy Greer. Don't forget, Judy, control that temper.

Robert Noble imparts a little of his basketball knowledge to Stephen Kaiser. Do you know the line-up of all the Major League teams, Steve?

Betty Lou Connors and Joan Demikat leave their numerous travels to any two girls who can get along as well as these two.

Irene Stozus's position as Parade of Youth correspondent is left to any junior who promises to do as good a job as Irene did.

Tim Burns gladly bestows upon Gary Mercier his difficulty in getting through the crowded halls. Think a pair of stilts would help, Gary?

Joseph Krawski's reputation for being the center of noise is happily given to Harvey Della Bernarda. Don't forget your own motto, Harvey, "Silence is golden."

Sally McQueeney's friendliness is to be left to Jean Ellison. Remember, Jean, friends can be the key to success.

Jane Richardson and Al Schaefer leave their fleet of cars to Harold Schortman. Think you'll ever have that many cars at one time, Harold?

Robert Spielman leaves his ambition to become a taxidermist to George Bastien. Please, George, confine your practice to four-legged animals.

Bob McClatchey will receive Gilbert Anderson's hearty laugh. Don't knock the walls down, Bob.

Bob Austin and Gary Donihee leave their after-school jobs to anyone interested in making money. The line forms to the right, boys.

Judy Kobylanski leaves her ability to play the piano to Sally Newberry.

Nancy Badstuber leaves her cheering ability to Jean Moore and Judy Woodmansee. Arch those backs, girls.

Ann Barry bestows her artistic ability upon Maureen Boyle. We hope you will enjoy making about a million posters next year, Maureen.

Sonya Pinkham leaves her ability to get along with boys to Glenna Pond and Marilyn Forbes.

Douglas Ziegra is to receive Ed Platt's witticisms. Better watch where you use them, Doug.

Patty Barry entrusts the care of her beloved French II book to Sheila Sargent. Treasure it always as Patty did, Sheila.

Jeannette Cote leaves her sewing ability to her sister Juliet.

Joseph Golden leaves his plaid shirts to Barry Hoffman. Don't make them too loud, Barry.

Shirley Hall leaves her shorthand notebook to Dianne Nield. Don't forget, Dianne, the "T" and "D" are made up.

Richard Whitehouse leaves his yearly job as publicity chairman for our parties to John Ellsworth.

Roger Vermette bestows his musical talent upon John Schanck. Keep the orchestra humming, John.

Stephen Hopkins is the recipient of John Malin's position as Sports Editor for the South Winds.

Richard Hensel surrenders his saxophone to Skip Chapman. Take good care of it, Skip, and polish it every day.

Betty Krawski leaves her job of selling lunch tickets to Esther Lathrop. Be sure to give everyone the right change, Esther.

Charlotte Mansfield's shy and quiet ways are left to her brother Edward. Remember, Ed, a few well-chosen words are often worth millions.

Ronald Larson is to receive William Katkaveck's love for hunting and fishing. Don't tell any fish stories, Ronnie.

Shirley Sargeant leaves her job as a babysitter to Marilyn Burnham. Don't forget, Marilyn, use child psychology.

Marlene Stanat leaves the honor of being Class Marshal to any junior who has the ability to stand perfectly still for hours and then walk for miles.

Morgan Bradley leaves his reputation for having the earliest crop of tomatoes in Wapping to Carol Higgins. Better start them in March, Carol.

Esther Joseph, Laura Pasqualini, and Pete Luchina leave the — ahem — honor ?? of being Class Clowns to anyone who can make people laugh as well as these three do.

Betty Ann Ahern leaves her position as Class Will writer to any junior girl with a lot of spare time.

We, the graduates of 1955, do now declare this sacred document, signed in the presence of witnesses, to be our Last Will and Testament and hope that our wishes will be faithfully carried out.

Class Prophecy

Scene: Hartford Hospital Operating Room. Joe is standing over Judy ready to operate.
He pulls off the sheet which is covering Judy.

Joe: Judy Daly! What are you doing here? I thought you, Joanne Kenny, and Shirley Sargeant were practicing nursing in the St. Francis Hospital.

Judy: Well, Joe Krawski, you old butcher! I hear that you have really been cutting up the place. Incidentally, I am a nurse, but I have an in-grown toe nail that needs straightening out, so here I am!

Joe: Talking about straightening out, remember that old class of '55? Now most of them are pretty successful. For example, remember how Bob Raulukaitis and Bill Katkaveck used to rack up those points in basketball? Well, they are presently playing for the Globe Trotters.

Judy: That is wonderful. Did you know Joan Demikat and Betty Lou Connors are also flying high these days? They are employed by the Pan-American Airlines as their two top air-line stewardesses.

Joe: No, I didn't know. But just about everybody has heard that Chet Drangenis and Gary Donihee are owners of the Two D Ford-Mercury Company.

Judy: Swell. I was talking with Judy Kobylanski last week, who is Miles Grant's private secretary. She told me that Miles plans to run for re-election as mayor of the growing metropolis of Warehouse Point.

Joe: Yes, it was also rumored that Pete Luchina and Walter Russak, who were Miles' strong arm men, are now hunting big game in Africa.

Judy: Oh, Joe, I just must tell you before I forget. I picked up the phone yesterday and heard two telephone operators talking. You'll never guess who they were.

Joe: I don't think you need to tell me, since I have a pretty good idea already. They are Laura Pasqualini and Lucretia Graham. After all, Judy, I used to be on Laura's party line!

Judy: Well, Joe, I will bet that you don't know that Corny Dollak, my old buddy, has bought the chain of First National Stores in Windsor Locks.

Joe: No, but I do remember hearing something about Pete Harrison enlarging his grocery store chain in South Windsor.

Judy: Incidentally, speaking of businesses, Carolyn LaPierre and Gail Mather have a thriving beauty salon for blondes only.

Joe: By the way, right next door is Wolves, Inc., owned and operated by Jack Desrocher, Joe Golden, and Tom Butler. In case you didn't know, Shirley Ellis, Connie Jansky, and Nancy Clark are their private secretaries.

Judy: Those fellows surely are carrying out the old spirit of '55. Al Schaefer's television program, "Wee Words of Wisdom to Women," also is a big hit these days, especially since he has Roger Vermette, first violinist, Esther Joseph, TV comedian, and Rich Hensel, trumpet player. The critics say that Rich is a second Harry James.

Joe: Oh, I almost forgot to tell you that Betty Ann Ahern, Mary Barnes, and Nancy Badstubner are now selling one-way Rocket Trip tickets to the moon. These girls claim it was their conscientious Saturday night study of the moon that helped them a great deal towards their recent success.

Judy: Tina Florida and Theresa Fortier have opened a new restaurant on Broadway with Bill Gregonis as chief chef. You know Bill got his technique from Marie Gilbert and Jeanne Harrison's cooking school. Also, Shirley Barbrick replaced Betty Furness as commentator on her program.

Joe: That's wonderful. Tim Burns has certainly got a rising business these days selling elevator shoes to Morgan Bradley, the biggest vegetable grower in Connecticut.

Judy: By the way, Dick Whitehouse, Ed Sharp, and Bob Spielman, chief scientists for research on the H-Bomb, are making a movie entitled, "How To Get Back After You Get Blown Off." Sue Ordway and Pat Palozie star in this melodrama.

Joe: (Starts Humming Song.)

Judy: That song sounds familiar, Joe.

Joe: It should. It's Pat Barry's top record. You know she is the top recording star for RCA. I understand she was lucky not to get into Bill Schortman's noted column called, "With Malice Towards All".

Judy: Talking about writers, Marlene Stanat has recently finished her book in etiquette. I understand it is already up for the Nobel Prize. Also, Irene Stozus and Sally McQueeney are both working for the United Nations. Irene is a correspondent for the United Press, and Sally is an interpreter for the U.N.

Joe: You know Bob Noble and Ed Platt, our old basketball managers, are now officers in the Marine Corps. Bob and Ed were telling me that they went AWOL when they met the new women officers, Janet Boynton and Jeanette Saczawa. You know Parris Island gets pretty lonely.

Judy: Remember those two dynamic women, Rose Picolla and Betty Luchina? Well, they have a pretty wonderful office crew for their thriving publishing business. Their office assistants, known as the Noisy Two, are Marie LaFountain on the typewriter and Charlotte Mansfield on the teletype.

Joe: I walked yesterday into Painless Malin's Tooth Extraction office, organized to put people in misery. My cousin Betty Krawski straps the victims into the chair, and Jeannette Cote holds them down. They are his two assistants. On my way out, I met Bob Austin, owner of Austin Autos, and later Caroline Bancroft, director of the magazine called "High School Fads on Their Way Out".

Judy: I think that it is wonderful that our schoolmates sponsor one another.

Joe: That reminds me of Ray Zagorski and Donald Rice. They have merged their mammoth tobacco companies into one. Bertha Winn is head of the personnel department for this company. I hear they are doing quite well.

Judy: Gil and Norm Anderson have gone into open competition with Anderson's Woodworking Shop and have formed the Anderson Iron Shop. Those two always were aggressive.

Joe: Norman Cotton and Jimmy Brown are running their new establishment called the "Insomnia Motel." The reason for the sleepless nights is Jonathan Hoskins' night club located across the street.

Judy: Have you noticed how this hospital is decorated with such exquisite taste? It was done by Mademoiselles Kay Karlsen and Shirley Hall.

Joe: Yes, I did notice. It certainly is the most to say the least. You know, Judy, as I was doing some research on the weaker sex, I happened to walk into Sonya Pinkham's dress department out at Lord and Taylor's and saw Frannie Setsky modeling the latest creations from Paris.

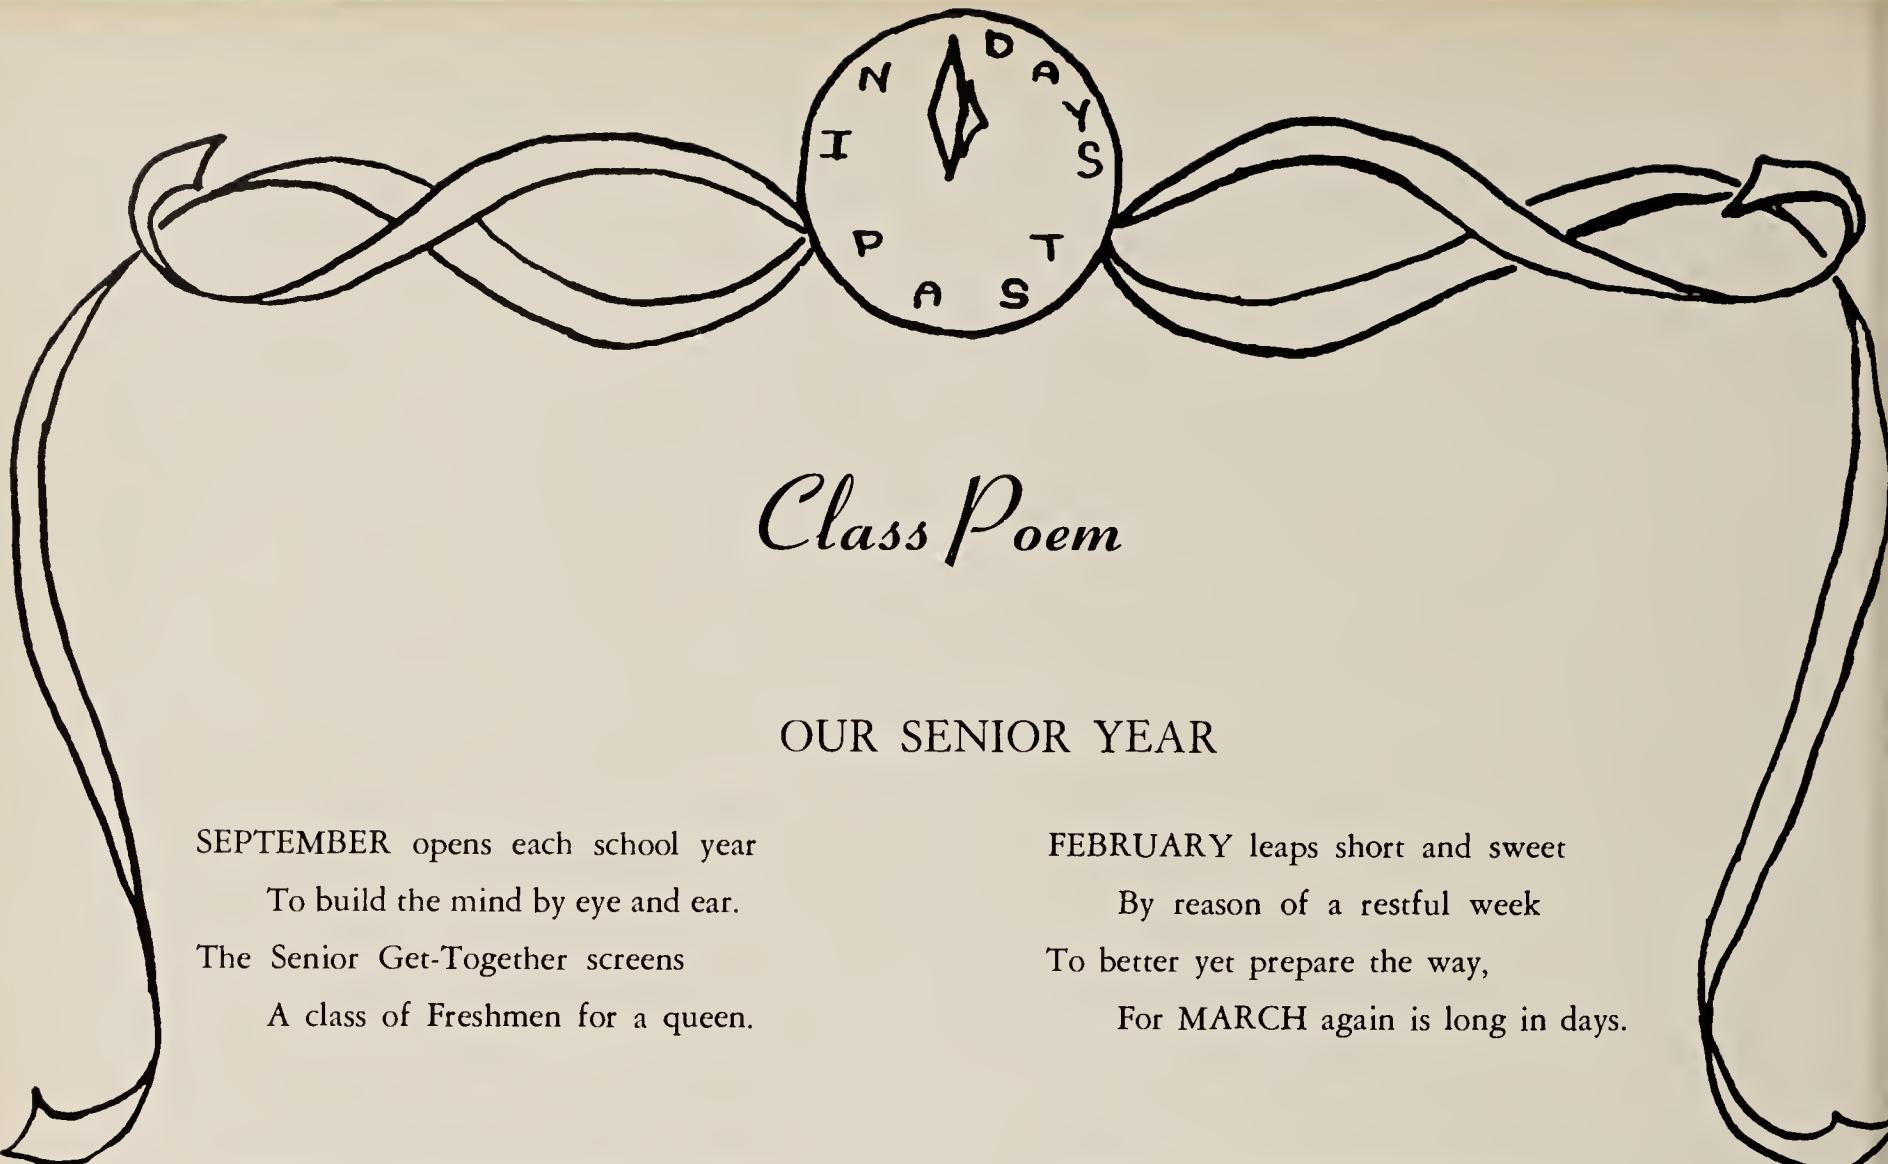

Judy: Really? Well, Frannie always did have a flair for styles. I hate to break away from the subject, Joe, but I visited dear old E.M.H.S. last week. I'll bet you will be surprised to hear that Carol Wheeler is now senior class supervisor and Jane Richardson is presently giving the down-beat to the school orchestra and band. Since Miss Kathryn McCutcheon's recent wedding, Gail Agnoli has taken over as office supervisor.

Joe: Wonderful. I took my hunting dog to Ray Maher's cat and dog hospital, but unfortunately the dog died. Of course, you have to understand the facts, Judy, that Ray never quite got over the shock of shooting his hunting dog back in the old high school days.

Judy: Well, Joe, summing it all up, I would definitely say that our class has been pretty successful! Don't think it hasn't been fun discussing all our colleagues, but I have to admit that this in-grown toe nail is simply killing me, so would you kindly proceed with the operation?

Joe: Certainly, Judy. I am glad to hear that your toe nail is killing you now because after this is all over, you won't ever feel any pain again. I will see you after the operation, I hope, and then we can reminisce still further about the good old days at Ellsworth.

OUR SENIOR YEAR

SEPTEMBER opens each school year
To build the mind by eye and ear.
The Senior Get-Together screens
A class of Freshmen for a queen.

FEBRUARY leaps short and sweet
By reason of a restful week
To better yet prepare the way,
For MARCH again is long in days.

OCTOBER is filled with hope and fear
While visions dim or bright appear
To cast a shady doubt
Of "Honors," "Passing," or "Just About."

APRIL—a welcome month in spring
To realization also brings
A long awaited golden dream
Of Washington in real life scenes.

NOVEMBER—cards mark the grade
Of progress we have or have not made.
A social party holds the prize
In climax of subscription drive.

MAY blossoms forth a Junior Prom.
Triumphant students thrill with song,
For education's merits prove
Commencement gains and objectives due.

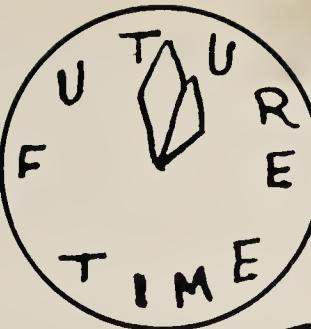

DECEMBER—time for winter sports
With basketball invading courts.
Win, lose, or draw, the team will hear
Their schoolmates cheering loud and clear.

JUNE arrives with exercises;
Class night and graduation prizes
In tribute honor four faithful years
Of struggle, heartbreak, joy, or tears.

JANUARY—Happy New Year, Guys and Dolls!
As Seniors throw a full dress ball
To celebrate with dance and song
Four years that seemed both short and long.

We prepare to tread new paths or lands,
Feel strengthened to meet the world's demands.
In severance the class of '55
Bids farewell, Our Ellsworth High.

—By Shirley Sargeant

Student Council

Bermuda skirts was the major topic of discussion of the Student Council this year. Class rings, the Point System, the Activity Fee, and the "Ellsworthian Story" were also important items discussed.

A subdivision of the Student Council, the Traditions and Government Committee, presented an assembly entitled, "Is the Student Council Effective?"

The S.C.H.E. — Social Crafts and Home Economics Club — began the year by giving a Big Sister Party to acquaint the new members with the club, its activities, and the other members.

The seventy or more members meet in the cafeteria bi-weekly. This year some of their projects included making an afghan and Red Cross caps for the Red Cross. Christmas candles, pocketbooks, and stockings were made and sold to help secure funds for the club.
